

DC BLOX in Birmingham, Alabama

Our Current Birmingham Campus

DC BLOX opened the Birmingham data center campus in 2019, providing secure, reliable digital infrastructure that supports critical healthcare, research, education, and government services across the region. The facility serves key public and private-sector organizations you might know, such as:

- The University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB)
- UAB Healthcare
- UAB Research
- Children's of Alabama Hospital
- Encompass Health, Jefferson County
- The City of Birmingham
- The State of Alabama Office of Information Technology
- And more

Local Economic Value of Our Data Center

The DC BLOX Birmingham data center represents a long-term capital investment in Jefferson County. Once operational, the expanded campus will contribute significantly more property tax revenue, helping offset the local tax burden while placing minimal demand on public infrastructure such as schools, roads, and public safety services. The Birmingham data center also complements the region's diverse economic base and strengthens critical infrastructure through investments in fiber connectivity, water and sewer capacity, and power grid resiliency that benefit the broader community.

How DC BLOX Is Invested in Birmingham

Job Creation

DC BLOX's data center campus will generate both direct and indirect jobs across construction, security, facility management, and technical operations, while also attracting new regional infrastructure providers to serve the area, driving long-term employment, investment, and regional economic growth.

Community Partnership

Just like every community where we do business, DC BLOX works closely with Jefferson County officials, institutions, and organizations to support economic and educational advancement and has since 2019.

We are your neighbors, invested in Birmingham's future.
